I am not the informant of the Journal, nor am I one who would be likely to see the greatest evils in the place. But lest I should be classed among the "moral cowards," I will say that I have seen more drunkenness in Cata wissa about the saloons, since the license cases, than I saw before the protest was before court against license. The enrouragement given to the complainants against liquor, by the Court, does not inspire me to go into court on the liquor question. GEO, B. DECHANT, Pastor of the Reforme dChurch at Catawissa. Catawissa, August 6th, 1881.

The kind of testimony which Mr. Dechant offers to give, proves nothing because of its generality. It would not even prove that there is more drunkenness now than before the protest, but imply that he has seen more, because his attention has been particularly directed to it. It is not evidence that the liquor came from Catawissa. If the facts are as stated, the remedy is a very simple one. Personal reflection upon the Court is not the manner prescribed by the Logislature for punishing violations of the was parsable, trapeze performance good, eccenliquor laws. We are informed that there has been more drunkenness in Berwick since is qualified. A PICNIC WITH VARIATIONS.

Accidents, discomforts and annoyances of divers sorts seem to be inseparable from that va riety of out-door entertainment known as picnic. Showers fall, lunches are spoiled, wagons break down, and mishaps of more or less mo ment befall the pleasure seekers. These mischances, as a rule, pertain to picules in day ight and are varied to some extent when the time is changed. One afternoon last week, party of young people left Bloomsburg to enjoy hemselves in a grove not many miles from Orangeville, intending to partake of supper and then return in the glory of a full orbed moon most durable fence made, is not The plan was original and would have been deightful had it not been for the "un exsected," which we are told "always happens." This was the signal for a hasty de was patient waiting for the storm that came not. This was not highly enlivening and at last patience ceased to be a virtue, and the revellers followed by a full stop to progress, evidenced a crisis. Matches were lighted, and it was ascerained that one of the hind wheels was hanging over a yawning chasm, and that a friendly tree alone prevented the tumble of the vehicle and its occupants down a miniature precipiec. This less quantities 111 cents per danger passed, another effort to reach home was made, but once more the wheels left the highway and sought refage in a ditch. A house stood near by and to the occupant an appea was made for a lentern. The illuminator waprocured, and the gentlemen of the party took turns in carrying this head light in front of the squipage until they reached Bloomsburg, at the heery hour of four o'clock in the morningweary, foot-ore and forlorn.
